Colorado court service-improvement program coming to Morgan County Surveys to be conducted Wednesday at Fort Morgan courthouse

FORT MORGAN, Colo. – People with business at the Morgan County Justice Center on Wednesday, Aug. 11, 2010, will be asked to participate in a program designed to help ensure the Colorado Judicial Branch is providing the best possible service to the public.

Throughout the day, court employees will ask people exiting the courthouse at 400 Warner Street to fill out brief, anonymous survey forms – in English or in Spanish – asking about their experiences as jurors, parties to a case or as recipients of other Judicial Branch services. Attorneys, law enforcement officers and anyone else who does business with the courts also will be encouraged to participate.

Data from survey responses will be used to measure public opinion about access to and fairness of the courts. People will be asked whether they had problems finding the court building, whether they could easily understand the forms they needed, whether they felt safe in the building and other related questions.

The survey forms also will ask people whether their case was handled in a fair manner, whether the judge or magistrate listened to them and had all the necessary information before making a decision, and whether they were treated with courtesy, understood what was happening in their case and were given clear information about the next step in their case.

“These are the people’s courts,” Supreme Court Chief Justice Mary Mullarkey said.

“Coloradans deserve the best the Judicial Branch can possibly offer them.”

The surveys have been used in 15 of Colorado’s 22 judicial districts during the past three years; this will be the first time they have been used in the 13th Judicial District (Kit Carson, Logan, Morgan, Phillips, Sedgwick, Washington and Yuma counties).

“We look forward to learning about how residents of the 13th Judicial District are treated in their courthouse,” said Chief Judge Michael K. Singer. “These surveys are an important tool for us as we strive for excellence in public service.”

In Fiscal Year 2009, Colorado’s 13th Judicial District saw 3,048 district-court cases filed, 1,225 of which were in Morgan County; and 12,015 county-court cases filed, 4,823 of which were in Morgan County.
