Patricia J. Donahue: Attorney-Mediator

In 1998 I began practicing as an attorney specializing in family law. I learned early on that most families are better served by resolving their issues (divorce, custody, parenting time, etc.) outside of the court system. With this understanding I pursued training in alternative avenues of dispute resolution including mediation and collaborative law.

I have a practical and compassionate approach to dispute resolution. Each person needs to be heard and needs to be treated fairly during the process. People also want to reach a resolution. As an attorney and a mediator I have the skills and legal knowledge to help people obtain workable solutions that resolve their disputes.
