Attorney Mediator, Nielsen Mediation, LLC

Margaret (“Maggie”) Nielsen has been a licensed attorney in Colorado since 2012, practicing in the areas of divorce and family law. Maggie completed mediation training through the Colorado Bar Association and expanded her practice to include mediation services in 2022.

Maggie is a graduate of George Washington University in Washington, D.C., and worked as a teacher before attending law school at Drexel University in Philadelphia, PA. During Law school, Maggie was an award-winning member of the Trial Team and received the inaugural “Kline and Specter Trial Advocacy Award” in 2012.

After witnessing the often polarizing and unpredictable effects of the court process, Maggie now focuses on helping people settle their disputes out of court. As a mediator, Maggie strives to fully understand each party’s concerns, and offers perspective and insight to help them achieve resolutions that will truly work as they move forward.

Maggie is a member of the Colorado Bar Association’s Family Law and Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) sections, and is a volunteer mediator with Metro Volunteer Lawyers.

Mediation can be an empowering process, allowing people to have ownership over the outcome of their case. Please contact Maggie if you have questions about mediation or about her approach to the mediation process.
