Tammy Stewart is a licensed attorney in Colorado and California celebrating her 35th year as a licensed attorney. Tammy received her B.A. degree and her Juris Doctorate degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder. Tammy has been a mediator in the state of Colorado since 2008, and she has been an O.D.R., Office of Dispute Resolution, contract mediator since 2010. Tammy has extensive training and experience as a mediator in Juvenile Law and Family Law cases. Tammy has mediated hundreds of cases and brings actual practice experience to her mediation of juvenile law, criminal law, and family law.

Tammy has worked as a Public Defender, Deputy District Attorney, Family Law Attorney, and in juvenile law as an Assistant County Attorney, Guardian ad Litem, and currently works with the Office of Dispute Resolution as a Respondent Parent Attorney. Tammy believes that everyone deserves justice and attorney representation regardless of their financial situation or cultural background. She has worked as a pro bono attorney and Colorado state Legal Aid Attorney since 2006. She has won the Rebekah McBride Pro Bono Attorney of the year award twice, and 100-hour awards for pro bono work numerous times.

Tammy has extensive training in Mediation, including completing the 40-hour Colorado Bar Association Mediation Training, and the 40-hour Advanced Mediation Training. She attends numerous Mediation, Family Law, and Juvenile Law Trainings per year. She is on the Dependency and Neglect Best Practice Teams in Grand, Moffat and Routt counties.

Tammy is an enrolled member of the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma and is very versed in the Indian Child Welfare Act t (I.C.W.A.) that now applies to Juvenile and Family Law cases.

Tammy brings joy and enthusiasm to her mediation practice and is dedicated to Alternative Dispute Resolution for the benefits a mediated agreement can have on the parents and children and family going forward, and she enjoys the interactions she has with her mediation clients.

Tammy enjoys Native American beading and jewelry making, playing the Native American Flute, and hiking and spending time in the beauty of God's creation in our beautiful mountains. She is the Author of two published books. She values family time above all and recognizes the gift that it is.
