| NOTICE OF LIST OF WATER RIGHTS IN THE NORTHERN HIGH PLAINS DESIGNATED GROUND WATER BASIN | |

The State Engineer and Division Engineer for Water Division No. 1 (“Engineers”), by and through the undersigned counsel, hereby provide notice to the Court and the parties in this matter of the list of all water rights in the Northern High Plains Designated Ground Water Basin (“NHP Basin”). On July 8, 2015, this Court entered an order finding that the well owners in the NHP Basin are indispensable parties. The Court ordered:

The Engineers shall provide the Foundation with the well owners who may be affected. However, the Foundation shall be responsible for paying the reasonable retrieval and copying costs associated with generating this list.

The Engineers want to clarify for the Court, and the parties, the nature and limits of the data that the State Engineer's Office maintains and to explain the data that is being provided.

Limits of Data

The Engineers maintain two separate databases which track water rights and well permits. The first is HydroBase, which is a database that the public has access to in part, but is hard to query without access to the back end of the database. HydroBase is used throughout the state as the Engineers' tabulation of water rights. This database holds what the Engineers refer to as "Rolodex Information" which includes contact information for each water right and many well permits. The Rolodex Information may contain the owners of a particular well permit or water right, but the Engineers do not track title ownership of water rights or well permits. Section 37-90-143, C.R.S. (2014), requires the owner of any active well permit to report changes in address or ownership of a well permit to the Engineers. This statute applies to well permits within a designated ground water basin or well permits for tributary water. However, the Engineers do not verify the information submitted to their offices and do not require that well permit owners prove their ownership with any type of title documentation. In addition, despite this statutory requirement, the ownership of well permits may change and the new well owners may fail to report the ownership change to the Engineers. The Engineers have no knowledge of such changes in ownership and the databases do not contain that current owner information not reported to the Engineers.

The Rolodex Information within HydroBase is more reliable for some water rights than for others. For example, because well permit owners are required by statute to report ownership contact information to the Engineers, the Rolodex Information for well permits is more complete than the Rolodex Information for surface water rights. In addition, the Rolodex Information for well permits which are in an area that is actively administered is more complete than other Rolodex

Information. The Engineers consider the Rolodex Information for well permits that are within the area covered by the Rules and Regulations Governing the Measurement of Ground Water Diversions located in the Republican River Basin Within Water Division No. 1, 2 C.C.R. 402-16 (“Republican Measurement Rules”), to be fairly accurate because these well permits are under rules which require active measurement reporting. It is important to note that the Republican Measurement Rules are limited to a geographical area which is smaller than the entire NHP Basin. It is highly likely that some of the Rolodex Information for these wells permits provides contact information for the well users who are not actually the title owners of the well permit. This is because the measurements must simply be reported, but it is not necessary that the measurement be reported by the title owner. The title owner may lease the well permit and may require the lessee to follow all applicable rules and statutes.

The second database is known as the Final Well Permit database. This database contains well permit information for every large capacity well permit issued in the designated basins for which a final permit is, or will be, issued. It is important to note that if a well permit is in an area that is not actively administered for either surface water administration or as a result of applicable rules, then the well structure is not issued a WDID (water division identification) and the well permit is not contained in HydroBase. The Final Well Permit database tracks documentation relevant to the issuance of final well permits and tracks the change of ownership forms submitted for each well permit. Again, the Engineers record the information reported on the change of ownership form, but do not verify that the information is true, accurate, or that the information reflects title ownership.

Data Provided

The Excel workbook filed herewith contains two spreadsheets. The first spreadsheet is on the tab titled “HydroBase.” The second spreadsheet is on the tab titled “Final Permit.” The HydroBase data set was queried from the main HydroBase database and the Final Permit data set was queried from the main Final Well Permit database. The Engineers have not manipulated the data that was queried from the two databases in any way so that the parties have the exact same data as is available to the Engineers. The Engineers provide data from both databases described above because the Republican Measurement Rules do not control the entire geographic area of the NHP Basin. The Engineers believe all well owners protected by the NHP Basin are affected by the claims in this matter, in particular the claim regarding the constitutionality of Senate Bill 52.

The HydroBase data set was developed from a query of HydroBase within the geographical boundary of the NHP Basin for all water rights. The data set provided includes both surface water rights and well permits because the Court reasoned in its July 8, 2015 Order and in its order granting the Yuma County Water Authority's intervention that the parties are indispensable due to their ownership in different water rights than the parties present in the case. As the water rights within the geographical boundary of the NHP Basin consist of both surface water rights and designated ground water well permit water rights, the Engineers elected to provide all water rights within the geographical boundary. The surface water rights can be identified in the HydroBase tab by sorting the spreadsheet by the "Include Type" column (column F). Well permits are listed as "MeasRule" and surface rights are listed as "Water Right." The HydroBase data set provides all of the water right identifiers that the Engineers track including: WDID, associated permits, associated case numbers, water division and district, county, PLSS legal description (as shown by PM, Township, Range, Section, Q160, Q40, and Q10), display name (which represents the Rolodex Information contact name), and address. The data set also provides a column titled "modified" (column V). This column provides the date of the last modification to the Rolodex Information (display name and address), in order to provide the Plaintiff with any information that the Engineers have regarding how up to date the contact information actually is in this data set.

The HydroBase data set contains many WDIDs which are listed multiple times on the spreadsheet. This is because when reporting is provided to the Engineers, the reporter (whether the owner or user) may provide more than one set of contact information to the Engineers. It is possible that the multiple listings provide the owner, an agent of the owner, a co-owner, or some other responsible person or entity.

The Final Permit data set was developed from a query of the Final Well Permit database within the geographical boundary of the NHP Basin for all well permits. The query also automatically removed any well permits which were included in the HydroBase data set. This was done by requiring the query to exclude any receipt number associated with an entry in the HydroBase data set. The receipt number of the well permit is the Engineers' unique identifier for documents and is contained within the back end of each database. The Engineers have not provided the receipt numbers as part of this data set production because it does not aid in identifying the people associated with a well permit. The Engineers excluded the well permits identified by the HydroBase data set in order to attempt to prevent providing a great deal of duplicate information to Plaintiffs. It is possible that a well permit listed on the Final Permit data set is also included on the HydroBase data set if the receipt number was entered in either database erroneously (all entries in both databased are completed manually).

The Final Permit data set does not provide WDIDs because the well structures in this data set are not actively administered under the Republican Measurement Rules or other tributary rules and have not yet been assigned a WDID. This data set also provides all of the well permit identifiers that the Engineers track including: permit number and suffix, water division and district, county, PLSS legal description (as shown by PM, Township, Range, Section, Q160, Q40, and Q10), full name, and address. This data set provides the management district in which the well is located for reference purposes. This data set also provides a column titled “modified” (column W). This column provides the last date than any data for the particular entry within the Final Well Permit database was modified. While it is highly likely that the modifications are based on the filing of change of address forms, it is also possible that the modification is the result to changes to the final well permit (such as structure location or amount).

Summary

The Engineers have elected to provide this amount of information to the Plaintiff at no cost because these queries were relatively simple and did not require a lot of the Engineers’ staff time. If the Plaintiff identifies some piece of data which the Engineers track that has not been included in the two data sets provided, the Engineers ask that Plaintiff’s counsel contact the undersigned Assistant Attorneys General to discuss whether such data is tracked by the Engineers and whether the Engineers can provide that additional data at no cost.
