Steve Zansberg will explain media law issues that can arise in court cases, including sealed documents and access to mental health reports.

SPEAKERS: Karen Steinhauser practices at Steinhauser Law, handling criminal defense and high conflict family law cases. Prior to entering private practice, Steinhauser served in the Denver District Attorney's Office as deputy and chief deputy district attorney from 1981-2001. In her tenure as a prosecutor, Steinhauser tried more than 250 cases. She has served as a full-time law professor, and as an adjunct professor at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law since 1990, and faculty member for the National Institute for Trial Advocacy since 1992.

Steve Zansberg is a partner with Levine Sullivan Koch & Schulz. For more than 15 years, Zansberg has represented media companies, online publishers and individuals in defending claims based upon content, fighting subpoenas and seeking access to government information and proceedings. Most recently, he represented the national news media in connection with coverage of the Aurora theater shooting case.
